

Larger Than Life and Twice As Ugly

By Ray and Val Vallese

Hutts rank near the bottom of the galaxy's "Most Kissable" list. They're fleshy, slimy, and ugly, and their nasty personalities don't exactly make them any more lovable. Strange, then, that Tempest Feud, the super-adventure that finally gives the Hutts their due, looks so good. For that, you can credit illustrator Adi Granov, whose black-and-white renderings brought just the right tone to the book. Art director Sean Glenn has provided us with images from the adventure for this online art gallery that showcases the greedy "entrepreneurs" and some of their attendants, allies, and enemies..

Popara the Hutt entertains visitors in the audience chamber aboard his Ubrikkian space yacht.

Zonnos the Lesser and his Wookiee bodyguards place gluttony before business.

A protocol droid helps Vago the Hutt communicate with "lesser beings."

Captain Angela Krin personifies the Corporate Sector Authority: cool, bold, and efficient.

Rodians of the Bomu clan enjoy hunting those who cross them.

Lungru the Hutt and his Cerean bodyguards are prime suspects in a murder investigation on Nar Shaddaa.

A Hutt in battle armor and wielding a force pike makes a formidable adversary.

Most Hutt clans on Nar Shaddaa use Klaatooinian slaves as guards.

Vicious predators called vrbithers trap an Evocii girl in the lowest levels of Nar Shaddaa.

An accused assassin leaps from the Anjiliac Tower on Nar Shaddaa.

Members of a ruthless swoop gang await the next shipment of tempest spice.

Humans, Hutts, Cereans, and Twi'leks are just a handful of species susceptible to the deadly symptoms of tempest spice addiction.

AG

AG

